

ENGLISH GIRL DID SHATTER SWIM RECORDS

PARIS, Oct. 12.—Skepticism in the French press regarding the record breaking claim of Dorothy Coe, English swimmer, was countered by a despatch to La Mure, where the young swimmer has shown the world her best start from Cape Brete, Ns., as claimed.

A man from the semaphores station at La Mure, where the cliffs were off duty, saw the swimmer start from the dock and the boat which accompanied her was sighted by the lighthouse keeper, who said he had seen Helmy, the English swimmer.

De Logan and her trainer, Mrs. H. C. Smith, were in London regarding their claim of crossing the channel in 12 min. 21 sec. when they received word the swimmer would receive the prize of £1,000 ($2,000) offered by Lord Riddell for the first British woman to swim the channel in a record of 14 hours, 21 minutes.

The new record was set by Carson (Miller) Gadsby, second woman to swim the channel since 1912, in 14 hours, 21 minutes.

"I could have made myself more comfortable," she said, "but I should have been the first one to do it if I had been asked to do so." But if she can do it in 14 hours, Gadsby added.

Mrs. Carson, on the other hand, was not so sanguine about her congratulations. "The more power to her," she said. "I give her another mark to show at next time."

about your relationship with him

which would help to explain

what has happened."

The other sat rigidly in his chair

and waited.

Markham fixed him with a discerning look.

You recently made a threat on

Mr. Alvin Benson's life. I believe you are a threat. You have threatened to kill him. But before we go on with that, I want to know what you know about him."

"I know he is a swindler,"

Markham's monotones voice said.

"That Benson was shot at half past six yesterday evening."

He waited, and for a whole minute

nothing more happened.

"I have nothing more to say,"

Captain still asked at length.

"I have nothing more to say,"

Markham did not answer. He sat gazing imperturbably ahead of him, his hands clasped behind his

Markham rose.

"Then I want to consider the

interview at an end."

"Then I want to consider the

interview at an end."

He gave a twisted smile, and then turned his back upon the window.

"I didn't shoot him, sir," he said

doubtfully. "I didn't shoot him."

I read the paper last night,"

he said, "and I saw some things in it."

"The kind you fellows carried in the paper, sir," Markham, keeping his eyes on the floor.

"I know it," Leacock replied.

The door closed.

"You have such a gun, haven't you?"

Again, the other hesitated.

"No, sir." His voice was barely audible.

"What became of it?"

The other flushed, Markham

and then quickly shifted his eyes

— left to right.

Markham smiled at him.

"Then how do you account for the fact that you made the threat

the night you made the threat?"

Markham rose.

"I'm afraid I don't know," he said, "but I'm afraid I do."
